Scissero Announces Strategic Arrangement with Mayer Brown to Streamline the Issuance of SEC-Registered Structured Products

London, 11 August 2026. Scissero today announced a strategic collaboration with Mayer Brown, one of the world's leading structured products law firms, bringing together Scissero's AI-powered legal workflow and document verification technology and Mayer Brown's market-leading structured products practice to enable Mayer Brown to offer its clients an integrated issuance solution for structured products.

The collaboration is designed to streamline the production, verification and filing of structured products documentation by combining document automation, AI-enabled legal workflows and document verification within a single end-to-end issuance process. An issuer's chosen document automation platform provides deterministic document automation and EDGAR conversion capabilities, while Scissero's workflow and document verification technology supports Mayer Brown's legal review and opinion process by validating that documentation generated through the client's document automation platform corresponds to approved document templates and pre-approved trade parameters before being released by Mayer Brown.

The initial focus of the collaboration is SEC-registered structured products in the United States. The parties expect that the underlying workflow will also be applicable to exempt offerings, European structured products, structured UITs and defined outcome products.

Mathias Strasser, Scissero's CEO, said: "Our expertise in structured products, AI and automation enables a genuinely differentiated solution that bridges the gap between document automation and Mayer Brown's legal review and opinion process. We're delighted to be working with Mayer Brown to bring that vision to market."

Jon Van Gorp, Mayer Brown’s Chair, added: “We’re pleased to launch this initiative, which we’re confident will benefit financial institutions, and realize many of the benefits of AI in an area in which the firm has a leading practice and has been known as an innovator.”
